

PROCLAMATION

Time and time again, the United States has called upon brave individuals to defend our freedoms around the world. In times of great danger, the men and women of the armed forces have stood resolute, putting their lives at risk when we needed them most. In making these sacrifices, they ask for nothing in return.

The strength of American society lies in community groups dedicated to the betterment of those around them. Today, embodies that sentiment as we honor our nation's finest citizens on this historic day in the Bluegrass with an all WWII Veteran D-Day Honor Flight.

WHEREAS, today, we have the privilege to honor Dr. W.B. Adkins, Jr., D.M.D., for serving during World War II, and being among the greatest generation;

NOW, THEREFORE, we, Carter M. Hendricks, Mayor of Hopkinsville, and Steve Tribble, Christian County Judge/Executive, do hereby proclaim June 7th, 2018, as in Hopkinsville and Christian County and encourage all citizens in the City of Hopkinsville and Christian County, Kentucky, to express their appreciation and recognition of the outstanding service to our community.

Dated this 7th day of June 2018.
